

Bullying At The Highest Level: Parliament

Posted by The Guru / 06 - Mar - 2018

As a closing note, I choose to screenshot a candid response of a common man, Singaporean son, who could not have summed it better. To all our Political Leaders, regardless of Party, let's remember our purpose. There are far more important issues that need to be addressed. Politics is Public Service at the highest level. Majulah Singapura !!!

I watched this whole debate once or maybe twice...and at the end of it i was like...increase increase lor.

But something in me just really disliked the arrogance displayed.

Somewhere near the halfway mark there is a mention about us being a first world parliament. But...do we really have a first world parliament?

Do we even have a first world nation?

In terms of facilities. Yeap.

In terms of security..Yeap.

In terms of many things we are.....

But yet we arent first world. We are but an island of irony.

Of headscarves, of protests, of chewing gum, of death sentences, of religion, of race, of personal family matters, of many more...

We arent perfect. And thats perfectly okay. But are we progressing towards being better? Or are we too busy surviving to even care?

Good and bad are on both sides of the benches, thats only human.

Most people aren't pro, neither are we anti.

We just tired, otw home, looking forward to Macdonald chocopie and softserve thai milk tea.

K bye.
